Breakout Discussion      The More the Merrier? The Era of State Privacy Law and the Possibility of a Federal Privacy Law

2:00 p.m.      States are increasingly rushing to pass new privacy laws. California passed the CCPA in 2018, then significantly revised the law with a proposition in 2020 – the CPRA. Virginia recently passed a privacy law, and bills are advancing in many states. What are the biggest challenges adjusting toward compliance with the CPRA, which will become effective in 2023? Which bills in other states pose the biggest compliance challenges? Which provisions of these laws and bills have the most promise to provide meaningful privacy protection? How likely is a federal privacy law? How should challenging issues such as preemption and a private right of action be handled?

Breakout Discussion      New Developments in the Privacy Law Landscape: *Biometrics, Dark Patterns, the FTC, COPPA, and More

4:00 p.m.      There are many new developments in privacy law, including biometric privacy regulation, proposed changes to COPPA and HIPAA, and much more. The FTC has announced new enforcement strategies, such as looking to disgorgement and restitution as potential remedies. A recent case has challenged OCR's enforcement strategy under HIPAA – seemingly mandating more widescale enforcement. The FTC will be holding a workshop on dark patterns, and state laws are starting to focus regulatory efforts in this area. What are the implications of these new developments? What should be done to respond to these evolving developments?
